THE weekly edition of THE NATIONAL REPUBLICAN is the best anti-Bourbon campaign document that can be circulated in the South. Special liberal rates are provided for the pending campaign. Sample copies free.

THE Delaware Republicans were never so united, enthusiastic, and determined as they are now. The Bourbons will find it hard to hold the State in line with old exploded ideas, and old, seedy, and threadbare politics.

THE Regular Republican party in Pennsylvania is regaining its strength day by day. The great masses of the party have watched the conduct of the contending politicians and the negotiations of the two committees. The Regulars offered so fairly, even to the extent of repealing all that the two conventions had done, and taking a fresh start, and the Independents so selfishly and obstinately refused to trust their cause to a general vote of all Republicans that the party is rapidly forming in line under the lead of General Beaver and the able and energetic organizing work of Chairman Cooper. The Independents have disarmed their friends while the Regulars have disarmed their enemies. The Press is doing powerful work for the cause.

Since the campaign of 1876 the only Republican districts that have maintained their organization by Congressional district committee in Virginia are the first, second, and fourth. During last month all three of these regular Republican Congressional district committees have met in their respective districts and indorsed the coalition. In the first district a majority of the committee was in attendance at the meeting, and the resolutions in favor of coalition were unanimously passed. In the second district eighteen of the twenty-two members of the committee signed the paper which we have published in THE REPUBLICAN. and in the fourth district the action of the committee (published in another column) was unanimous. The formal declarations of the committees in favor of coalition are of great importance, and we call attention to them, not only for use in the present campaign, but for future reference.

In the House on Friday, on motion of Mr. Dingley, a resolution was passed providing for the appointment of a joint committee of two Senators and three Representatives to report to the next session upon the decline of American shipping and to suggest some remedy therefor. This action comes rather late in the day, but yet we are willing to accept it as indicating that Congress is at last becoming alive to the serious disadvantages under which our commercial interests have languished for nearly twenty years.

It is easy to account for the decay of our merchant marine, and the committee will find little trouble in arriving at a just conclusion as regards this branch of the subject submitted to them. The main difficulty will be found in agreeing apon the proper remedy. Other nations, when their commerce had dwindled down or did not appear to flourish as it ought, have adopted the plan of paying bounties and premiums on ships constructed, besides subsidizing sea-going vessels in large sums to induce shipbuilding. During the year 1881 the Austro-Hungarian Lloyd Steamship Company received from the government subventions and compensations to the amount of $1,787,022 floring for 1,441 voyages, aggregating 1,516,201 sea miles. The aggregate of all the sums thus expended by Austria would be vastly more; but large as it might be it would fall far short of what the French government paid out during the same period for a similar

France has a most comprehensive plan for building up her merchant navy, and one so simple and possessed of such merits as to win the approval of Prince Bismarck, who earnestly urged its adoption, almost in full, by the German government. But now that our own needs are at least partially known, and there is a fair prospect of their being further in-ble memory. He was recently summoned in san amired into, it is unnecessary to do more. which, though perhaps improbable, is not therefore impossible, the effect upon this country would be favorable; and with a little effort in the right direction our ocean carrying trade could be fully restored to us. This having been done, the fault would be our own, and not that of circumstances, should we ever lose it again

Congress.

A silver-tongued orator, who formerly represented Nevada in the House of Representatives, once said (jocularly, of course) that it was his proud boast to be able to say at the close of his two years of service that he "had never voted for a tax nor against an appropriation." The congress now in session has made a considerable reputation of this same sort as to appropriations, and is now struggling over the question of whether it will vote for the reduction of any tax. The Republicans of the Senate are battling for a reduction of the overflowing revenues, which are so irresistible a temptation to lavish expenditures. The Democrats, whose organs and orators have been fiercely demanding a reduction of taxes, are fighting to keep them as they are. We verily believe that if the Republicans were to attempt the repeal of the Federal election laws the Democrats would vote to retain them. The Republican Senators cannot do a better work than refusing to agree upon a day for adjournment until the bill to reduce taxes shall have gone to the President for this signature. Let the country for the reduction of this signature. Let the country for the reduction of this signature. Let the country for the reduction of this signature. Let the country for the reduction of this signature. The three same form the cade midshipmen and all the undergraduates at the Naval Academy, but in lieu thereafter be designated and called 'naval cades' and from those who successfully complete the six years' course grades of the line, and that no greater number of appointments into these grades shall be mappoint the reduction of taxes, are fighting to keep them as they are. We verily believe that if the Republicans which have cocursed in the sumber of vacancies which have cocurse in the order of ment, as determined by the academic board. But nothing hereis or such appointments from such graduates of the year and the reduction of the reductio Congress now in session has made a conreduce taxes shall have gone to the President for his signature. Let the country see that it is the Democracy which votes for the maximum of revenues. That dear old party should never be deprived by Republicans of a stone wall against which to beat its stupid old head. A month or two of debate would leave them still fighting against any reduction of the taxes, while, as to appropriations, it would not be a whit strange if, in the absence of enough Republicans, they should some

A Soldier's Widow Speaks. To the Editor of The Republican: Thave been in tears ever since I read your paper on Saturday. I am the widow of a Union soldier, and have tried to get into government employ for some months, and yet I see that both husb and and wife, and in many cases married women who have no ciains whatever on the government, are recommended by Rapublican Senators and members and employed by government officials. I am told by undoubted authority that several married ladies are employed in the Treasury and other Departments whose husbands are able to support them. I do not believe the heads of these departments know of the exact state of affairs. Why this hipostice? Why cannot section 1751 be enforced, and then if there is any room left for Democrats and their wives, give them a chance. I am nigh on to the verge of starvation with three little children.
